Simplified choices, selected for hospitality.

You want to create the perfect interiors for your style of hotel. Spaces your guests will love. Which is why our portfolios of modular carpet and LVT offer a wealth of choice for the hospitality sector.

And to help you choose, we've put together a series of palettes. Selections of patterns and textures within distinctive colour themes.

Colour has a profound influence on how people perceive and react to their surroundings. So you can use these palettes to inspire particular moods in different spaces. We've chosen them specifically for hospitality, to enhance all key areas – guest rooms, shared spaces and corridors.

Whatever the hotel and location, and no matter what type of guests you want to attract, these palettes make it easier for you to set exactly the right tone.

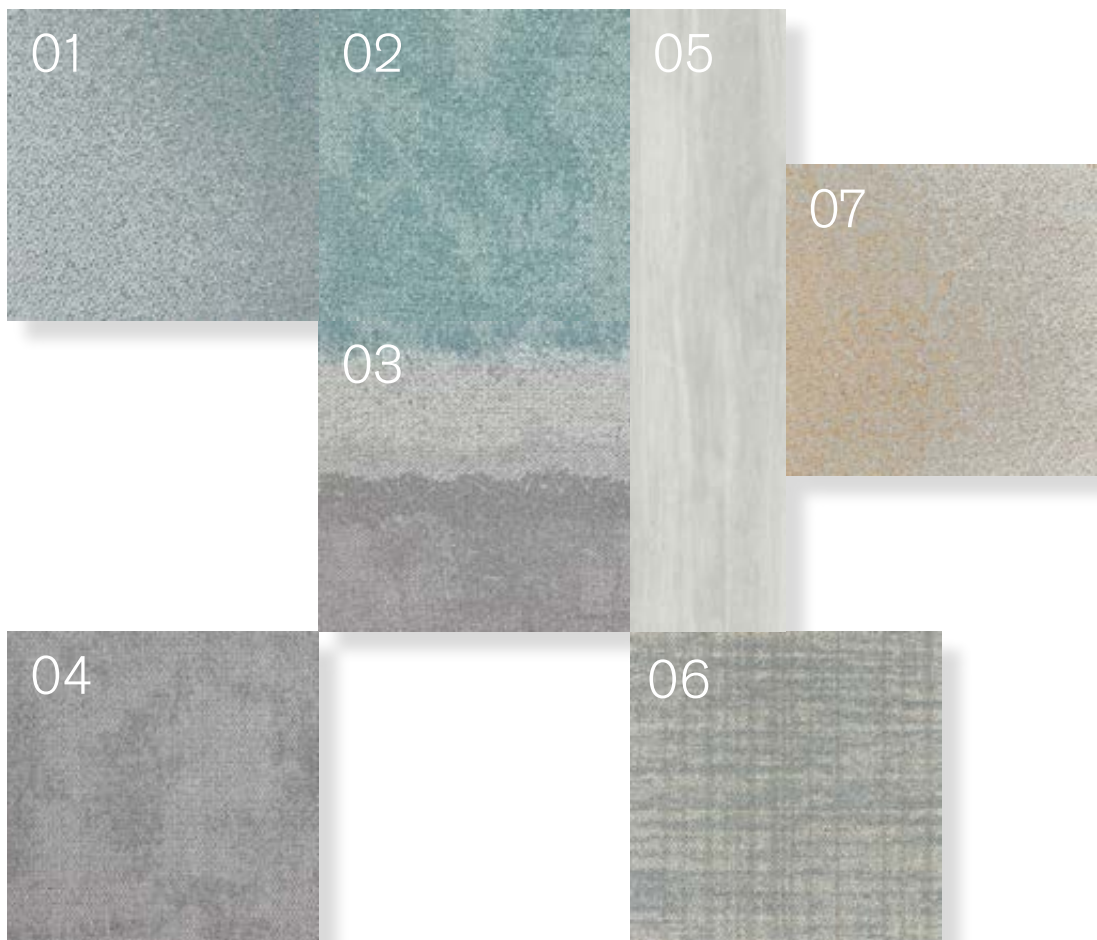

Soft, subtle pastels

This palette may appear gentle and restrained, but these delicate shades and fine-detailed patterns can provide a strong direction when designing hospitality spaces. Pastel yellows, peaches and pinks create a relaxing, cheerful welcome, while mint greens and pale blues provide a refreshing, revitalising contrast.

Combine these colours for a variety of effects, or use just one as a simple, clean backdrop for more striking furnishings, decoration or artwork.

Neutral, natural beiges

Understated, yet offering warmth and a reassuring sense of calm, these predominantly beige tones and textures originate in natural raw materials. Minerals, timbers and fibres all inspire this palette, helping you emphasise a minimal aesthetic while retaining visual interest.

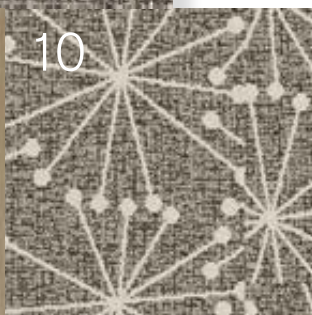

Whether you're designing a chic lobby or the cosiest guest room, you can juxtapose and layer complementary shades and styles. And discover just how varied 'neutral' can be.

Grey, black, white

If you want to keep things simple and sophisticated, this palette shows just how much you can do with shades of grey, black and white. Subtle patterns and textures soften any hard edges, bringing depth and richness to a monochrome interior.

In guest rooms, darker tones can evoke opulence and indulgence. Off-whites and lights greys can create a cool serenity. And in multifunctional spaces, contrasting areas can mark out zones for different activities, while maintaining a coordinated look and feel.

Relaxing greens

People have an innate affinity with nature. And bringing its strongest colour and related patterns into hotel design has clear benefits. It improves moods and attitudes, relaxing guests and enhancing a feeling of escape and comfort.

So a lobby or bar designed with greens and other natural references becomes a popular meeting place. And in guest rooms, this palette can help create an environment where people feel at home and want to stay longer.

Soothing blues

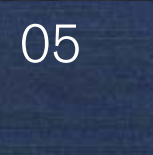

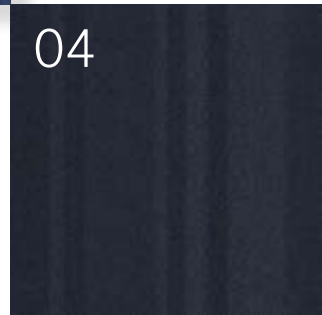

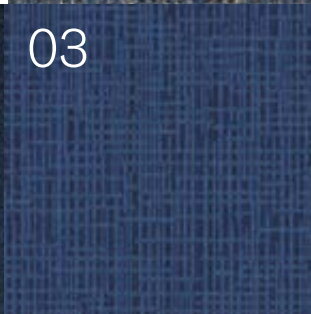

The colour of sky and sea, blue appeals to our natural instincts in a similar way to green. Tranquil and timeless, it's adaptable to many types of space.

A wide variety of tones and patterns in this palette shows how soft blues can be restful in a quiet lounge or guest room. And stronger or brighter shades can be invigorating, maybe for a lively bar or lobby. While darker, richer blues enhance a luxurious feel with the comfort of this reassuring colour.

Bold and bright

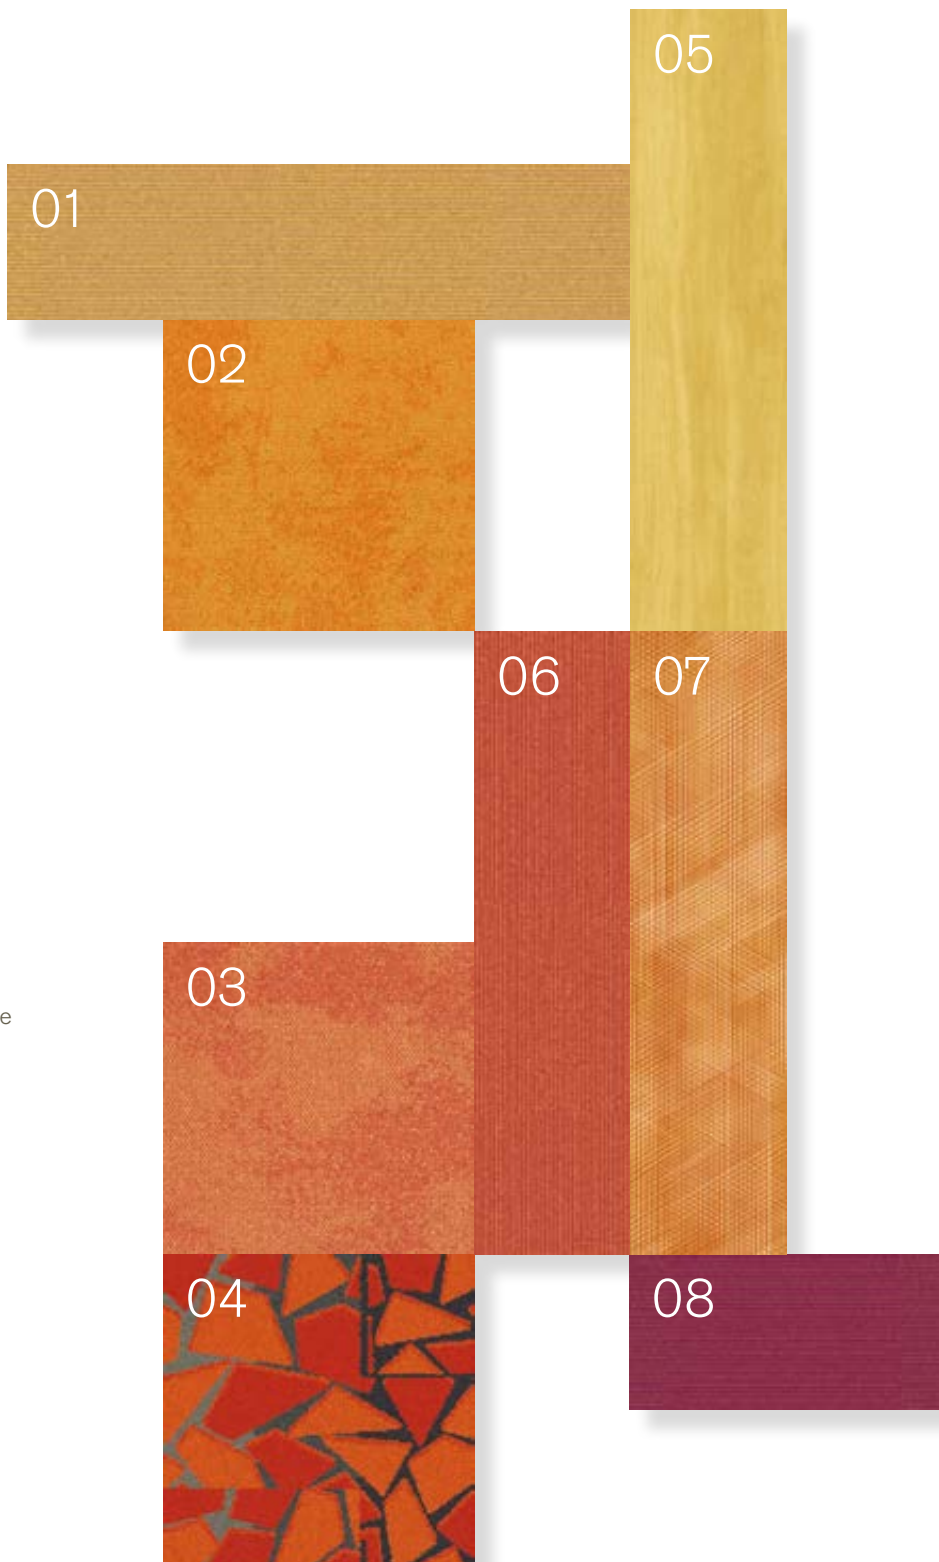

When you use them sensitively, strong accent colours can make a space truly memorable. They help bring out the distinctive personality of your hotel, and heighten any mood you're trying to create.

Vibrant orange shades, for example, can emphasise a friendly feel – or even add a sense of fun. Reds, with their powerful impact, have a big effect in small amounts. And purples, with their regal associations, always provide a touch of luxury. The right accent says a lot.
